

Associated Press
Olympic Park bringing back native species -- fishers

Central Kitsap Reporter
Waters of Dyes Inlet steadily improving

Everett Herald
Oil spill equipment put to use

KING 5
We need more log jams

Kitsap Sun
Dead seals reported on Kitsap beaches
New orca calf spotted
Water Quality Concerns Cited in Illahee Appeal
Orcas leave their mark
Dyes Inlet whales — ten years later
Orca researchers call for dam removal
Oxygen levels help Hood Canal fish, research project flourish

New York Times
Effort to save Everglades falters as funds drop

Olympian
Development on sensitive Henderson Inlet approved
Woodland Creek nears critical juncture
Study of estuary called incomplete
Nisqually refuge generated $2.59 million for economy

Philadelphia Enquirer
To save wildlife, save refuges

Port Townsend Leader
Members sought for Olympic Coast National Marine Sanctuary council

Seattle P-I
Deal would save Eastside rail corridor for trails
ConocoPhillips oil spill case will make the state's waters safer
Puget Sound recovery agency reorganizes
Invasive insects intercepted at port
Seattle, Tacoma and Vancouver ports seek to reduce air pollution
New baby orca spotted off Whidbey Island
Returning urban salmon provide a thrill and a lesson
Gravel-mine foes say old documents make their case
UW launches DNA 'fin-printing' project to study salmon
A River Lost?: Will it be safe to eat fish from the Duwamish? (part two of three-part series)
A River Lost?: Duwamish whistle-blower paid a steep price (part three of three-part series)
Senator to keep EPA focused on Duwamish
Duwamish cleanup plan assailed

Seattle Times
Port to buy Eastside rail corridor
Protecting water resources should be a priority
Puget Sound's J pod has new baby orca

Skagit Valley Herald
Samish tribe studies former railroad trestle for creosote contamination, water flow
Aquatic reserve aims to better protect parts of Fidalgo Bay

Tacoma Daily Index
Learn about Shoreline Master Program

Victoria Times-Columnist
Contaminated soil fouls land near reserve